How do I clean existing fungus, moss or algae off my roof?

For pre-existing stains we recommend StainhandleR Roof & Deck Cleaner, which is specifically designed to clean roofs prior to application of the Stainhandler Zinc roof protector strips. Other cleaning solutions may not be effective against these organisms, and may harm your roof or plants.

How much cleaner will I need to purchase for my roof? How do I apply it?

Generally, one (1) gallon will clean 2,000 square feet when mixed at a ratio of 9:1 with water. The diluted cleaner is best applied with a pump type garden sprayer, starting at the bottom edge and working up the roof.

Will Roof Cleaner harm my landscape plants?

When properly mixed and applied according to the label directions it will not harm your plants. As added insurance, you can wet down your foundation plantings before starting the application, and rinse them again following completion.

How often should I apply Roof Cleaner?

Once you have cleaned your roof, StainhandleR Roof Protector zinc strips should be installed to prevent the return of algae, fungus, or moss. Stains caused by pollution, pine pollen, dirt, etc., may need to be re-cleaned as deemed necessary to maintain your roof's neat appearance.

Can I use Roof Cleaner & Deck to also clean my deck or sidewalk?

Absolutely! Roof & Deck Cleaner is the perfect solution for restoring the appearance of wood decks, gazebos, fencing, or porches.

It will not change the wood's color (including cedar and redwood) because it contains no chlorine bleach.

It is also ideal for cleaning most non-oil type stains from concrete driveways and sidewalks. Properly follow all directions on the label.

Will one application completely clean my roof?

You must first spray the darker streaks that appear on the roof, then spray the remaining roof surface, going over these darker streaks a second time. Some severe stains may require a lower ratio of water to concentrate. If in doubt, experiment with a small area of the roof, first starting with the recommended ratio of 9 parts water to one part concentrate. If needed, work your way up to a 6:1 ratio, which should only be used on the most severe problem areas.

What is the proper procedure for using this cleaner on my roof?

The procedure is very simple. Apply the mix with a garden-type sprayer and after a few minutes, wash the stains away, ideally with a pressure washer or with a garden hose and an inexpensive high pressure nozzle. Follow the detailed instructions on the label.

Answers To Your Questions About StainhandlerR Zinc Strips – The Maintenance-Free Roof Protector.

Will StainhandlerR Zinc Strips eliminate an existing algae, fungus, or moss problem?

No, you need to remove the stains first with Stainhandler Roof & Deck Cleaner. See Roof & Deck Cleaner FAQ's.

How do the Zinc Strips Work?

When rain water comes in contact with StainhandlerR Zinc Strips, small amounts of harmless zinc oxide are released. This invisible zinc oxide prevents the growth of vegetation.

Will one row of StainhandlerR protect my roof?

In most cases, one row at or the top row of shingles will be sufficient to inhibit the growth of fungus, moss or algae, On roof slopes longer than 20', or roofs with a severe or persistent problem, install a second row halfway down the roof. Hip, mansard and barn roofs usually require extra strips. See roof illustrations.

What if I prefer to nail the zinc strips?

If you prefer to nail them, please go to www.shingleshield.com for a nail-in product.

Will StainhandlerR stay shiny?

No. StainhandlerR will quickly weather to a pewter gray. In addition, since only 2" of it are exposed it is difficult to see from the ground. The alternative is an unsightly, badly stained roof.

Is StainhandleR available in colors?

No. If we were to apply color to StainhandleR it would be unable to release zinc oxide – the active ingredient that protects your roof.

Will StainhandleR harm my plants, animals, or children?

StainhandleR when used as directed is completely safe.

Zinc is an essential element of the human body. It can be found in vitamins, and as additive in breakfast cereals. It is the active ingredient in sunburn preventing cream.

How long will StainhandleR last?

The life depends on roof area, local rainfall, humidity, and other factors. On an average roof the strips should last up to 50 years.

Will StainhandleR stain my roof?

No. The zinc oxide it releases is microscopic and absorbed by the shingles.
